Ricardo Aberle to present at the May 21 general meeting

Ricardo Aberle learned to paint from his father, Enrique Aberle, a watercolor painter who studied with Frank Lloyd Wright in California in the 1950s, and knew how to incorporate nature into his designs. Ricardo decided to follow his father's same path and paint nature.

By day, Aberle works as the grounds supervisor at the Fairchild Tropical Garden in Miami, Florida. Aberle supervises the nurturing of every plant in the 83 acre tropical garden. His love of the garden is apparent in his paintings, close up studies of tropical plants emphasizing the colors, shapes and relationship of light and dark in the garden.

A MESSAGE FROM OUR CO-PRESIDENT THOUGHTS FROM A PROCRASTINATOR

As much as I love all of the hustle and bustle of winter's art and cultural activities in Miami, and the thrill of seeing old friends that wander through here on their way to 'somewhere'; I am usually quite happy to wave goodbye to it all. I wave off the glorious weather, and welcome the hot steamy subtropical 'ick' that follows. During the humid summertime, all my routine volunteer activities come to a screeching halt. Just prior to that is the magical moment where I fantasize that I am going to accomplish monumental tasks. I really believe that I am going to rid my house of all the nonessential items that I have accumulated, organize all of my closets, and PAINT fabulous and meaningful artwork. After all, who needs the deadline of an entry date? Summertime gives me all the time in the world. All of the incredible and lofty ideas that I know I can create are just about to blossom into thoughtful paintings and become a reality.

My magical thinking lasts until the end of May. June, July and August are my reality checks. I wind up cleaning, and organizing and do just a bit of painting. In my gut I know that my procrastination is a form of fear. If I don't paint it, I can't mess it up... and if I don't mess it up the idea is truly wonderful and holds a great deal of potential. I go through this every summer. Perhaps this year it will be different. However, just in case, come September, please don't ask, "how did your paintings work out?" After all, the devil is in the details.

Have a wonderful summer, My wish for you is to do whatever it is that brings you peace, calm and happiness! If it is painting your heart and brains out, all the better. See you in September.

– Bettyann Pober, Co-President

Artist Statement

My paintings employ a combination of realism and impressionism, with a touch of abstract design. My hope is to evoke the same feeling to the viewer that I felt when first seeing the subject, the sense that there is more to the subject than a mere rendering. Lights, darks, bold colors, lost edges, and more hopefully come together to recreate that feeling. I attempt to apply the illusion of detail in many works so that viewers can use their imagination to complete the image. Sometimes less is more.

Florida Watercolor Society Needs You!

During last September's Florida Watercolor Society's Convention in Ocala, there were four sessions of silent auction items and raffle items to raise our funds for scholarship, convention and exhibition expenses. Yes, we regularly get donations from our trade show vendors and art material suppliers, but it's not enough to provide a full selection of items for our conference attendees. You can help here by donating something to FWS!

These donations don't necessarily have to be related to art: Jewelry, house wares, museum admissions, crafts, books, cards or any other items are most welcome. Perhaps you have created other craft or artistic items other than watercolors that you might share. Perhaps a giclée print of your work. Gift cards, books, DVD's and art supplies are also welcome.

You can also ask your local art store, framer or friends, who are art patrons, for an item or two. Go through your "stuff" and give a tax deductible donation to help FWS continue to grow and to maintain our promise for continual excellent, convention, watercolor educational and exhibition opportunities.

To arrange for your donation before the convention or other inquiries, please contact Kim Minichiello, 2nd VP at kimminichielloart@me.com
